

I am completely and utterly opposed to any attempt to do away with the no call list. Business has no constitutional right to invade my personal living space without my consent and I am appalled that the banking industry would attempt such an underhanded and reprehensible act.